Research interest

My work area is behavioural ecology and relative disciplines. I concentrate on behaviour, foraging, predator-prey interaction, host-parasitoid interaction and spider potential in bioindication and pest suppression. I work on relationship between spiders and their environment (habitat association and response to human activities e.g. management, pesticide treatment). I study tritrophic relationships in system spider-prey-parasitoid. This includes relationships between spiders and parasitoids (e.g. host preference, host manipulation), between spiders and prey (e.g. prey preference, pest suppression) and among spiders each other (e.g. intraguild predation, competition). I try to solve both, the basic ecological problems and the practical ecological problems in agriculture, horticulture and forestry.
